SUPPLEMENT TO REPORT NO.

1. In order to avoid that officials and employees of the Polish Embassies and Consulates in Western countries defect at the moment of being recalled, the Polish Government has allegedly adopted a system of making them return to Poland with service tasks, and then detaining them.
2. Every time one of these officials is given the task of making a trip to Warsaw, where they are required to spend their leave, he is seized with fear of being detained there permanently.
3. These officials and employees reportedly do not know whether they are being repatriated, and, therefore, the reports on their departure for Poland are often uncertain and subject to change.
